18 MILLION IS ADDITIONAL SUM NEEDED BY STATE

LEGISLATIVE MEMBERS AND PINCHOT
AGREED ON THIS POINT: TAX BILLS
WILL BE REPORTED OUT IMMEDIATELY

Gasoline and Motor License Fee Boost Will Probably Be the Method the Committee Will Recommend to the Assembled Legislators

THE BUDGET FIGURES STAND AS STATED

Harrisburg, Pa., April 11.—At the end of a long series of financial conferences between members of the Legislature and the Administration it was generally agreed today that the total additional revenue which must be found this session will amount to eighteen million dollars. It was further believed that it might not be necessary to enact new taxation to make up all this amount but that some of it might be found by merging and leveling of funds and other similar methods.

Members of the Legislature working on the financial problem said the tax on gasoline and motor licenses might be relied upon to secure a portion of the eighteen million dollars needed. An additional tax of from one to two cents per gallon on gasoline, plus an increase in motor license fees was the plan, which it was said, would be recommended.

In a sense, the final agreement today was regarded as a personal victory for the Administration, since the budget figures would stand in the Legislature.

Washington, April 11.—George Harvey, American Ambassador to Great Britain, will come home this month to manage the Administration campaign for American entrance into the International Court of the League of Nations.

President Harding and Ambassador Harvey together will map out and co-ordinate the Administration's plan in support of this policy, which is closer to Mr. Harding's heart than any other major issue in the campaign. Whether Harvey will return to his London Post will depend upon what happens after he gets here. He may remain to direct the Harding 1924 campaign.

Washington, April 11.—A serious international situation has been created by the action of the Turkish Nationalist Parliament at Angora in ratifying the so-called Chester Concession for a vast development and exploitation of Turkish and former Turkish territories, observers in Washington were convinced today.

Great Britain is certain to contest the ratification according to information in well posted quarters here as the Concession strikes squarely at vast British interests in the Near East.

Not alone does the ratification of the Chester Concession mean that it will be fought by Great Britain but this has actually caused a serious clash between two American groups over the prize, which probably consists of one of the greatest development enterprises ever planned.

Ropes Her After 10,000-Mile Trip

Samuel Mirich, Colorado rancher, finally has thrown the matrimonial lariat around his sweetheart. He emigrated from Serbia to Colorado. He returned to Serbia for her. Eloped to Germany. Couldn't marry there because they hadn't lived there long enough. Sailed for the United States. She couldn't pass entrance tests. They returned to Germany and waited required time for license. Returned to U. S. Quota for Serbia filled. Mirich went to Washington to get permission for her entrance. He traveled 10,000 miles for her.

FOUR PRISONERS MAKE BOLD ESCAPE
FROM MATTEAWAN HOSPITAL FOR THE
CRIMINAL INSANE; ALL BAD ACTORS

Matteawan, N. Y., April 11.—Four persons escaped today from the state hospital for criminal insane in the spectacular manner in which Harry K. Thaw escaped from the same institution.

The prisoners overpowered five guards and took four with them as far as Poughkeepsie.

The convicts are: Frank James and John Hawkins of Brooklyn, and John Coffee and Marquis Curtis of New York. Hawkins was indicted for murder, James was indicted for felonious possession of explosives and the other two were indicted for thefts.

Reprisals Follow The Ruhr Demonstrations Staged Yesterday

Berlin, April 11.—The Ruhr today paid for its demonstration against the French on the occasion of the funeral of thirteen Krupp victims yesterday.

Evictions, fines, arrests, deportations, shooting and threats of court martial were reported from a dozen different places in the occupied areas.

Developments in today's dispatch include: Essen.—Another victim of the shooting at the Krupp works died this morning.

Walthrop.—A French soldier shot and killed a German girl in Buor.

Frankfort.—The French continued wholesale evictions. They occupied a second railroad colony at St. Paul, setting approximately one hundred German families into the street.

Duessburg.—The French fining the town 75,000,000 marks, ordered immediate payment in dollars, and arrested the mayor and others as hostages.

Harrisburg, April 10.—The Pennsylvania state police in enforcing the new prohibition enforcement act do not intend to search trains any more indiscriminately than they do automobiles on the highways.

YELLOW DOGS WILL HOLD BONE KNOW
HERE TOMORROW EVENING; WATCH
YOUR STEP IN THE DARK ALLEYWAYS

Thursday evening this city will be visited by a large delegation of Yellow Dogs. Just where they are coming from and where they will meet is of course unannounced as not all of them are tagged and serious consequences may result.

Properly speaking these curs travel under the high sounding title of Ancient, Honorable, Transcendental and Effervescent Order of Yellow Dogs. The organization is chartered by the Blair county court and already has over four thousand members in this state.

Tomorrow evening the curs will assemble to gnaw the bone, growl, bite and fight but not a hand shall be lifted against them. The mayor has issued a license giving them the keys to the alleys and byways of the city and the official dog catcher, anathema to all Yellow Dogs, had better keep out of the way.

The above is the subject matter of a communication received at The Progress office today so let our keepers of the peace not be led to do promiscuous shooting when they see a Yellow Dog running up an alley. Citizens witnessing this influx of fleas, bitten, mange-ridden mongrels need not worry but can go to bed and sleep soundly for the Yellow Dogs have a code of ethics which is at once philosophical, commonsensical and humanitarian, yet provides in case of ancient fraternity.

Fortunate indeed will be the man who is selected for membership in this organization which always can be depended upon to do the work that it has cut out for itself to do.

The meeting of the Board was held last evening in the office of the Workman's Cash Grocery Company, Chairman George L. Thurston presiding.

The meeting opened with a prayer by Captain Watson after which the roll call for 1923 was taken up. There was a good attendance and fine interest taken.

Much business in connection with the forthcoming building campaign was discussed. It will be recalled that the Army is asking the citizens of Clearfield to help it get its own headquarters here. An appeal will be made on May 1st to 10th. During this discussion Captain Watson related that he had already secured three large subscriptions and announced that Captain W. B. Fowler, of Pittsburgh, district superintendent would be present here for a few days to help get things in shape for a successful campaign.

The chairman for the various groups were elected as follows: S. L. Warner, Chairman Industrial Group with W. J. Usher Assistant Chairman; Hon. W. L. Lett, Chairman County Group; Ralph Jordan, Chairman City Business Men's Group; House to House Appeal, Horace Flagell, Publicity, G. A. Stewart, Tag Day and Public and Parochial Schools E. W. Hearn.

The members of the board assembled last evening were enthusiastically of the opinion that this appeal will go over the top and that the Salvation Army's friends and supporters throughout the county will co-operate to this end.

The appeal headquarters are in the Lattman Building and advance subscriptions marked Salvation Army Building Appeal may be sent direct to the Treasurer, R. L. Fulton of the County National Bank or to Captain and Mrs. L. E. Watson, Box 404, Clearfield, Pa.

ADVISORY BOARD OF
THE SALVATION ARMY
PLANNING CAMPAIGN

Reports Heard at the
First Meeting Cause of
Enthusiastic Work for a New Building.

BEGINS MAY FIRST

The April meeting of the Clearfield Salvation Army Advisory Board last evening heard that the Salvation Army Building Fund campaign is already under way. While no active work has been done, the board heard from Captain Watson that, already, three large gifts have been tendered to him. This, together with the favorable report that the board has heard concerning the announcement that a building fund would be raised this year, leads them to believe that Clearfield is not going to be remiss in discharging its obligation to the organization which always can be depended upon to do the work that it has cut out for itself to do.

The meeting of the Board was held last evening in the office of the Workman's Cash Grocery Company, Chairman George L. Thurston presiding.

The meeting opened with a prayer by Captain Watson after which the roll call for 1923 was taken up. There was a good attendance and fine interest taken.

Pittsburgh, Pa., April 11.—Beaumont Dromeustrau of No. 7 Rue Raymond, Paris, France, faithful companion for more than fifty years, was left three tenths of the income of the estate left by Norman Stang, son of a Pittsburgh wealthy family, according to the terms of the will filed for probate today.

No estimate of the estate left has been made. The estate is to be placed in trust for his wife and daughter, both of whom live in Canada, and the income of the estate, the remaining one-tenth goes to Alfred Lloyd, a friend.

Although born in Pittsburgh, Stang spent most of his life in Paris, dying at the home of Miss Dromeustrau. Before he died he directed that his body be sent to Pittsburgh and buried there.

STRENGTH AND VIGOR

Good Red Blood and Health Will Follow If You Take This Advice

Johnstown, Pa.—"I can not say enough in praise of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery for the help it has given me. I take it as a blood purifier and as a tonic to build me up when run-down, also for sluggish and inactive liver and it always gives quick relief." Golden Medical Discovery builds up the entire system and is one of the best medicines I have ever found for a bad cold or deep-seated cough. The "Discovery" is an excellent family remedy and I am never without it in the home for use when needed."

COMB SAGE TEA INTO GRAY HAIR

Darkens Beautifully and Restores Its Natural Color and Lustre At Once

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea, with sulphur and alcohol added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use preparation improved by the addition of other ingredients in a large bottle, at little cost, at drug stores, known as "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," thus avoiding a lot of fuss.

While gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared. After an hour application or two your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant and you appear years younger.

COMMUNITY SERVICE ACTIVITIES

As many as possible of the men interested in horseshoe pitching are asked to be present at the meeting at the High School Thursday night at 8 o'clock so that all the necessary business can be dispatched in that one session. It will be remembered that this sport has been followed seriously for only one season and considering the fine progress made last summer, a systematic organization this year should put out some really expert players. In fact there is some rumor of possible competing outside of the state. Officers and a few working committees are necessary to carry on the business and one brief but well attended meeting should take care of that.

The Mother's committee of East End Community Service join with the teachers in that ward in repeating the invitation to the tea party at the School House Thursday afternoon at 2:30. There will be a little program by the school, Mr. A. D. Bigler will be there to discuss some matters of interest to East End people and there will be, of course, tea served by the committee. All are asked to make an effort to find time to come for these little affairs have proved most delightful and worth while.

All scouts who have not yet supported the movie venture by getting tickets to call to their friends are asked to come to the Scout house for them as soon as possible. Scouts can only ask for tickets and support for a thing they will themselves walk for.

DR. HARRY GESSLER TAKEN TO WARREN STATE ASYLUM

Punkatowney, April 10.—Dr. Harry Gessler, known to countless friends throughout this section as "Heavy," is suffering from a mental affliction and is now in the Warren hospital for the insane. "Heavy," who climbed high on the baseball ladder of fame as a member of the Washington American Club and other big league aggregations, got his baseball start in Punkatowney. His many friends hope fervently that his affliction will be short lived and that he will soon be able to resume his practice of medicine.

MARRIAGES

James O. Booth and Miss Fria S. Williams were quietly married at the Lutheran parsonage by the pastor, Rev. E. Roy Hauser on March 28th. The bridegroom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Booth of near Curwensville and is a veteran of the World War, having served with the 80th Division overseas. He was wounded in action and was decorated with D. S. C. and the Croix de Guerre. The bride is the daughter of Mr. Samuel Williams of Curwensville. They will reside in Curwensville.

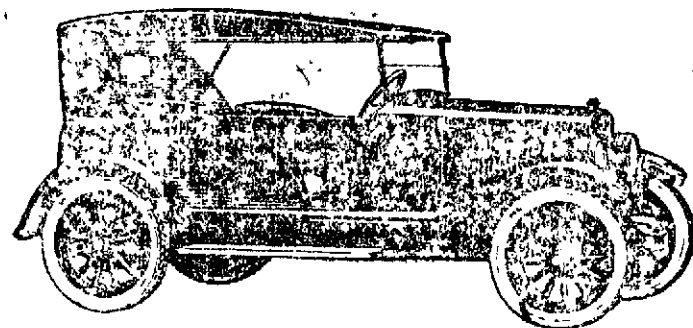

James H. Johnston and Miss Fria Jane Fister were united in marriage this (Wednesday) morning at the Lutheran parsonage by the pastor Rev. E. Roy Hauser. The beautiful ring ceremony was used. The bridegroom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. S. M. Johnston of Glen Hope and is employed with the U. S. Refractory Co. of Barrett. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Fister, of Clearfield and has been employed with the Clearfield Textile Co. They were attended by a brother of the bridegroom and sister of the bride.

Vendetta begins between MICHAEL SAYERS, noted criminal, and SIR NORMAN GREYES, once of Scotland Yard, when Sayers' beautiful housemaid, JANET, saves him from Sir Norman by shooting dead an officer sent to arrest him. Greys falls in love with Janet and proposes marriage. Michael disguises himself and attends the wedding reception. Having stolen a pearl necklace, the gift of Sir Norman to his bride, Sayers returns them indirectly to Janet.

Michael buys from the divorced wife of a politician a bundle of manuscript, evidence against the lady's former husband and his confederate, the well-known Lord Kindersley. Sayers refuses ten thousand pounds from the newspapers for the evidence for publication because he is in love with Beatrice Kindersley.

"If you toward the close of a dinner party at Kindersley Court, in Devonshire, where Janet and I were spending a fortnight, that our host suddenly directed the conversation to me."

"One has heard a great deal of your successes, Greys, especially during your last few years at Scotland Yard. What do you count your greatest failure?"

"My inability to bring to justice the greatest criminal in Europe," I replied after a moment's hesitation. "I had him on my book for three years, but when I retired, he was still very much at large."

"What is his name?" Lord Kindersley asked with some interest. "I smiled."

"A name, with him, I suspect, is an affair of the moment. I have known him under a dozen different pseudonyms; but his real name is, I believe, Michael. He did me the honor to attend my wedding reception at Colonel Baccumb's."

I happened to meet the glance of Beatrice Kindersley as I looked across the table.

"But tell us about this man, Michael," Lord Kindersley intervened. "I remember, seven or eight years ago, hearing something about the duel between you fellows at Scotland Yard and a wonderfully bad criminal gang. Where is the fellow now?"

I shook my head.

"I shouldn't have the faintest idea where to look for him. If he comes into the sunlight again, my friend Rimmington at Scotland Yard will certainly send for me."

"And you would join in the hunt?" our host persisted.

"You would do nothing of the sort," Janet intervened looking across at me. "That is a promise."

I smiled back at her reassuringly. Prosperity and peace of mind had agreed with Janet. The dignity of widowhood sat well upon her. Her complexion seemed to have grown more creamy, her beautiful eyes softer, her carriage, always graceful, more assured. There was no woman in the county more admired than she—certainly no one less spoiled.

"Sometimes think that if she had had her way, she would never have wandered at all outside our little domain."

"There is just the one possibility," I remarked, "that I might not be able to evade the challenge. If I do not go after Michael, he may come after me."

It was precisely at this moment that the affixing event happened. We were a party of twelve at dinner seated at a round table in the center of the large banquet hall of Kindersley Court. The room was rapidly shaded table lamps. The two footmen had left the room, presumably to fetch the coffee, and the butler standing behind Lord Kindersley's chair was the only servant in attendance. Suddenly every light in the place went out, and we were plunged into the most complete darkness.

"Never knew such a thing happen before," our host declared in an annoyed tone. "Somebody must have been tinkering with the power-house. Fetch some candles here."

The butler turned to go; his way toward the door, but he was not allowed to reach it. From various parts of the shadowy room a fire blazed out and steadily approached, without sound or movement. One of them came to a stand still immediately behind Lord Kindersley's chair. Winked by some

"I have put my rings and bracelets upon the table. I am wearing around my neck a necklace and two bracelets. It is jewelry very valuable, but it was left me by a relative. May I keep it?"

The light flashed for a moment upon the pendant which she carried to be holding forward for examination. Flashing on the little heap of her jewelry upon the table.

"I have your miniature," the voice cried. "Do you see the father's honor, if you will, of respect your jewelry upon your fingers and wrists. We are not here to rob children of their treasures."

BEATRICE'S laugh was a soft, charming thing. It was perfect, by nature and full of contentment.

"I don't like the reflection upon my jewelry," she complained. "However, since you are so generous, I will accept your offer."

"Look here," Lord Kindersley broke out, finding a certain change from his own complete constipation. "Is this a wedding ring?"

"You will observe if it is a genuine gold ring or not. If you object to leave your seat," was the instant reply.

"These fellows can't think they're going to get away with a thing like this," muttered Lord Kindersley, the hard heartedness of the county, from the other end of the table.

"Your Lordship is mistaken," said the confident reply from the man whose figure was directing the proceedings. "I will say you are to one in hundreds that we the present moment to be made through the personal columns of the Times in thirty days' time."

"God, he's a cool hand!" shouted another. The master of the house, who was seated next by one to me, "I wish I could see his face for a moment."

"It would be your last if you did," he was promptly told.

"What a strike a model!" a young man who was seated next to Kindersley exclaimed.

"I should put it out with my hat, let and you with the next," he answered him grimly. "Now, ladies and gentlemen," he went on, in a brief pause, "our business comes to order. Anyone who loves his own life, or the life of his family, will shoot. As soon as we get there, we shall lock you in, and then you can amuse your first of the fun as soon as you like."

No one attempted a single word of reply. The little points of fire were kept turned upon us while our visitors slowly retreated. We heard the door open and heard it slam shut. We heard a single light signal by simultaneous movement. Very much as if all started to get unseen hand, the gleaming brilliancy of a half-dozen electric torches was flashed round upon twelve anxious faces. Then a strong voice broke the spellbound silence, a voice still and cold and perfectly modulated.

"Ladies and gentlemen," the intruder said, "there is no need for any particular alarm. This is to use a slang phrase, a 'hoax.' We have automatic pistols, and I trust that you will realize the absurdity of resistance."

"God bless my soul!" Lord Kindersley exclaimed. "Where are all my servants? How the devil did you get in?"

"It is scarcely policy to let you into the secret of our methods," the same cold voice continued; "but I have no objection to telling you that we came in through the front door, that your servants are locked up and guarded in the servants' hall very much as you are, that your telephone wires are cut, your electric light supply is in our hands, and the lodge-gates guarded. You ladies will kindly place all the jewelry you are wearing, upon the table in front of you. There must be no delay, please, or any attempt at conversation."

"What shall I do?" the woman next to me whispered hoarsely. "I am wearing my emeralds—Jack im-plored me not to—they are worth 20,000 pounds."

"You will have to do as the others are doing," I told her. The first act of this little drama must be played out according to orders."

She unclipped the necklace with trembling fingers, and the unseen

"Will it be Sir Norman Greys who stands across the stage in the second act?" he asked maliciously.

"I know who was there, and I remembered that without fail he would take my life when he saw the opportunity. He was there, but I never had any chance for him."

"I may occupy the stage for a little time," I answered, looking at my wrist through the darkness. "After all, it will be the third act of the comedy. With you, Greys, I have a quarrel. I shall see you at Wandsworth Jail or the chair at New Street."

This, of course, was sheer bravado, a touch of melodrama of which I was pained as soon as I had listened to it. I heard the click of a chair and in the dim light of the torches I saw that I was alone. I was based on a door that I had just opened. There was a clatter of feet and a man came running through the door.

"A familiar voice," I thought. "I checked and called out to the intruder. 'You do well to follow me, my lady. Some day or other, I think that your husband will kill me or I him, but before he does, I will with a poison of my own. It will be when we are both armed and the odds are even.'"

"May I speak, please?" Beatrice Kindersley asked.

"I have put my rings and bracelets upon the table. I am wearing around my neck a necklace and two bracelets. It is jewelry very valuable, but it was left me by a relative. May I keep it?"

The light flashed for a moment upon the pendant which she carried to be holding forward for examination. Flashing on the little heap of her jewelry upon the table.

You ladies will kindly place all the jewelry you are wearing, upon the table in front of you. There must be no delay, please, or any attempt at conversation."

"What shall I do?" the woman next to me whispered hoarsely. "I am wearing my emeralds—Jack im-plored me not to—they are worth 20,000 pounds."

"You will have to do as the others are doing," I told her. The first act of this little drama must be played out according to orders."

She unclipped the necklace with trembling fingers, and the unseen

ODD'S AND ENDS AND THINGS

By J. D. C.

There are no games like this, old games, hence the revival of interest in horse shoe pitching, marble shooting, etc. Clearfield is about to put on an old-fashioned marble shooting tournament to which all the kids will be eligible, therefore the following on the subject should prove of interest:

The marble shooting contest scheduled for some time in June at Atlantic City will be attended by 41 crick shots from as many different cities. At first it seemed too much like some childish boyhood to put this matter and well loved game on a championship footing. But so far neighbors of marble shooting hasn't been hostile, and incidentally interest in marble is being revived.

A Kansas City librarian, Purd B. Wright, writes the public that in the days of which Mark Twain wrote in "Tom Sawyer" and "Huckleberry Finn" grown men were as keen about marbles as the boys. With city, country and national contests now gaining favor, we may find dignified fathers all over the country setting aside their golf sticks for an hour or two and, tackling down once more to shoot an obolus with the gang. They mightn't make too good a showing at first, but a old skill would probably come back with persistent practice. Father-son marbles contests ought to prove a great aid to the present day movement for a better understanding between the two generations.

A pamphlet summarizing the facts learned through the "careful crossing campaign" last summer, as to causes and means of preventing grade crossing accidents, has just been issued by the Pennsylvania department of the Pennsylvania railroad.

Probably the most important conclusion reached in that nearly all accidents at grade crossings, which involve motor vehicles, are directly due to gross carelessness on the part of a very small proportion, not over three per cent, of the total number of drivers. Observations were made while 100,000 automobiles were actually crossing the tracks. It was found that the drivers of ninety-seven per cent of the automobiles were reasonably careful but that the remainder displayed reckless and in many cases actually criminal negligence.

Elimination of the reckless drivers, who make up a very small percentage of the total, and who are responsible for nearly all the accidents, is the remedy suggested for this condition. Use is urged of all reasonable means within the legal powers of town, city, county and state authorities to bring about this result.

A driver can figure out how reckless he is by a glance at the following schedule prepared after careful investigation and research by police and automobile authorities and which is regarded as standard on the subject. It shows the distance a car will run before it can be stopped at various rates of speed, as follows:—
At 10 miles per hour, 9.2 feet.
At 15 miles per hour, 20.8 feet.
At 20 miles per hour, 37 feet.
At 25 miles per hour, 58 feet.
At 30 miles per hour, 83.3 feet.
At 35 miles per hour, 113 feet.
At 40 miles per hour, 148 feet.
At 50 miles per hour, 231 feet.
These figures should serve to inform the motorless automobile driver of the distance he is taking when he travels through any built up section at even 20 miles per hour.

We never give enough attention to the danger of fast driving until an accident occurs. The unfortunate driver in the fatal accident of Saturday last was driving no faster than hundreds of other drivers seen daily on the streets of Clearfield. Many

TRUTH TRIUMPHS

Clearfield Citizens Testify for the Public Benefit.

A truthful statement of a Clearfield citizen, given in his own words, should convince the most skeptical about the merits of Doan's Kidney Pills. If you suffer from backache, nervousness, sleeplessness, urinary disorders or any form of kidney ills, use a tested kidney medicine.

A Clearfield citizen tells of Doan's Kidney Pills.

Could you demand more convincing proof of merit? Ask your neighbor!

Lewis E. Wise, miner, 404 River St., Clearfield, says: "While working in the mines I was caught with a pain in my back. I couldn't do any lifting or anything that caused me to bend over. I had no appetite and the pains in my limbs were severe. Doan's Kidney Pills being highly recommended to me I began their use and I noticed a change in my condition before taking half a box. On finishing two boxes of Doan's the pains in my back and lameness were all gone." 50c. at all dealers. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.

Your State Commissions Regulate Public Utilities

YOUR State Commission knows all about the affairs of your Electric Light and Power Company. This Commission sees to it that your rates are as low as possible but also that earnings are sufficient always to pay dividends regularly to the investors in the Company's securities. Why let the earnings of the Company go to investors who live in other cities and other states? Why not keep these dividends at home?

FORBES Magazine asks the question and FORBES is offering

$1000 in Prizes
FOR LETTERS ON

"What are the Benefits of Customer Ownership of PUBLIC UTILITIES?"

EVERYBODY is invited to write whether a FORBES subscriber or not.
Contest closes May 15th, but send your letter right away.

The letters may be either a few pages or a dozen pages in length.

Start preparing your letter now. Make notes of ideas as you think of them. Talk them over with your family and friends.
Discussion will bring out many things and stimulate your thinking.

For the best letters FORBES will award
the following cash prizes:

FIRST PRIZE $500 THIRD PRIZE $100
SECOND PRIZE $200 40 PRIZES OF $5 EACH

The contest is open to everybody. Con-

tants may or may not be subscribers to FORBES.

By "best letter" FORBES does not mean best from standpoint of literary excellence but best in the reasons and ideas presented on the question.

FORBES reserves the right to publish any of the letters submitted, and plans to begin printing some of them in advance of awarding the prizes, which will be announced in the June 9th issue of FORBES Magazine.

Bargains

Oh, the joy of purchases that satisfy! It's not nearly so much what you pay as what you receive for what you pay that counts. We want you to feel that our reputation is back of every purchase. With us a sale is not completed until you have used the merchandise to your satisfaction. Bargains are often boomerangs. Quality determines our price. We aim to give 100 per cent value for every dollar spent in our store.

It is commonly recognized that doctors and lawyers, upon entering their professions, are in duty bound to conform to an accepted code of ethics in the carrying on of their work. It is a new departure, however, for a group of newspaper men to formulate a code which makes it unethical for their papers to print matter deemed objectionable by leaders in their profession.

The pioneers to take such an action are the members of the State Editorial Association of Oregon. The editor of a leading periodical in the East, in commenting on the matter of the opinion that the code adopted by the Oregon newspaper men is a higher standard than the average practice of the business, although not higher than that maintained by some newspapers in most cities.

The Oregon code is a big step forward in the annals of newspaper progress. It is an open recognition of the responsibility which the press carries toward the people to whom it supplies reading matter, the responsibility of giving them the truth at all times, at the same moment bearing the best interests of a man in mind. By adopting such a code, the Oregon association should raise the standard of journalism not only in its own state, but should raise it in other states by leading them to adopt similar codes.

The recent tragic death of little Tony Luffetti beneath the wheels of an automobile on Daisy Street last Saturday afternoon should serve as the warning which will waken Clearfield through authorities and automobile drivers generally to a sense of their responsibilities the coming season.

We believe our readers will unanimously agree with us in the statement that both the state automobile laws and the thorough traffic ordinance are practically entirely ignored and that one automobile driver in ten appears to know or pays attention to either while driving Clearfield's streets and the only wonder, to one familiar with conditions, is that there has not been more accidents. That there has not been many here is purely the result of extra good luck rather than good management and some effort should be made to improve traffic conditions before other lives are snuffed out in the twinkling of an eye.

The law provides, and no man should be allowed to violate that provision, that every automobile driven through a congested or populous section, such as every street in Clearfield is considered by the law, at such a rate of speed that it is under the absolute control of its driver and could be stopped almost instantly at will. No car traveling twenty-five miles per hour or even twenty miles, can be so regarded.

The traffic ordinance also provides that automobiles may be parked on but the west side of all streets running north and south, and on the south side of all streets running east and west. How often and how generally is this provision disregarded? Don't ask yourself, look at your street right now and count the flagrant violations.

We have no criticism for the borough authorities for their laxity except to say that they have been entirely too lenient and are the victims of that system which aims to get along with the least possible contention or friction, and in doing so took the most for granted by giving the automobile drivers an inch of privilege and almost each and every one so privileged took the proverbial yard and then some.

Mayor Kittelberger and Council owe it to themselves and to the people of Clearfield to get together, and at once, and make decision as to the strict enforcement of the traffic laws in Clearfield. A stitch in time may save nine lives. Now is the time.

SHOE STYLE AND SHOE VALUE
THAT REMAIN SUPREME ALWAYS

Seven Points of Supremacy

1. The sole leather used in "FOOT-FITTERS" is of the best quality obtainable. From the 11 miles and 1/2 from standard outside leather.
2. "FOOT-FITTERS" are the only shoes in the world having full length range and sole in other last shoes. This feature prevents ripping at the tip and makes smooth outer and inner surfaces.
3. The uppers are channelled so that they fit tightly against the foot. There is no need or room for a sock liner. A small piece of duck is used to prevent chafing.
4. The "FOOT-FITTER" inside comfort pocket is of great value, for it saves the wear on the foot. There is no rough surface to rub against.
5. "FOOT-FITTER" heels are 1/4-inch longer than generally used. They give additional support to the arch and increase the comfort and wear of the shoe.
6. The shoe is reinforced with 8-oz. duck. This absorbs the moisture from the foot and keeps the foot from cracking and holds the shoe in shape.
7. "FOOT-FITTER" shoes are called "FOOT-FITTER" because they do not crack! Built on combination of 11 points they support the foot like a doctor's hand. "FOOT-FITTER" gives you service and appearance.

Electric Range
And Heating
Appliances

PENN PUBLIC SERVICE CORPORATION announces the publication on February 23, 1923, of a new "F" rate for electric range and heating appliance service in order to provide the customer who desires to install such appliances with a lower rate for such service.

THE NEW "F" RATE is applicable to service for electric ranges and heating appliances which include such appliances as coffee percolators, toasters, griddles, etc.

The regular residence service will continue to be measured through the customary light meter, another meter and service being installed to take care of the electric range and heating demand.

ELECTRIC RANGE SCHEDULE "F"

For the first 30 kilowatt hours of monthly consumption 10c per K. W. H.
For all in excess of 30 kilowatt hours used each month 3c per K. W. H.
A minimum charge of $3.00 per month will be made. All bills will be subject to a discount of 5% if paid on or before the 15th of the month following that for which bill is rendered.

Schedule will apply to service supplied through one meter, to one customer, at one residence, with an installed electric range or heating appliance capacity of not less than 3 K. W.

Our New Business Department at Clearfield will furnish full information upon request.

WOODSLAND OWNERS!

Are you realizing from your land all that it can produce? Close utilization and new uses of forest products and forest land have revolutionized values. Freight cost on lumber brought into the state is now double the price paid for lumber a few years ago. Scientific methods applied to forests, protection, manufacture, utilization, marketing, transportation rates and methods, timber estimating, damage appraisal, etc. will do for you what it has done for other industries. It will cost you nothing to talk this over with an organization specializing on these subjects. Give full particulars. The Forest Service Co., Sandy Ridge, Pa. 4411th

HAYMAKER'S "PIG" GOT OUT AGAIN

About forty Haymakers gathered at the Red Men's hall in the Mechanics' building last evening and after the Boss Drivers had discovered four traps near the hayfield and boosted them over the fence as the first chapter in the demonstration of the method of making hay rain or shine, the orders' prize "pig" was led out and as he was chock full of bacon it was decided to risk the goat again and all hands repaired to Bro. Charles Shugart's restaurant where one of those appetizing feeds of Bro. Shugart's was soon demolished. It was a real time and everybody present enjoyed it to the limit.

OUR FRESH BUTTERMILK MAKES HIT

From the way folks are getting buttermilk from the wagon men our fresh buttermilk must be making the greatest hit ever. Folks are finding that it is the sort that brings on a desire for another glass.

The way we make it precludes anything but the best and you'll find it a little the tastiest you ever took.

We use cultures for the ripening of our cream and this is better than the old fashioned method of letting the cream ripen of its own accord.

Try some of the buttermilk and you'll find out just how good buttermilk can be.

STATE NOW OWNS 1,130,510 ACRES OF FOREST LAND

Harrisburg, April 10. (United Press)—A summarization of State purchases of forest land made public by the Department of Forestry today showed that the State had purchased up to Jan. 1 1923, 1,130,510 acres. The first forest land was secured in 1898 at a cost of $1.62 per acre. The average cost per acre of all purchases since then was given at $2.26. By far the largest purchases in any one year were made in 1902 when 175,035 acres were secured at a total cost of $407,068.05.

A Mother's Song

This is the fourth of a series of advertisements by The Atlantic Refining Company on the TRUTH ABOUT GASOLINE.

Gasoline is one of the Cheapest commodities you use

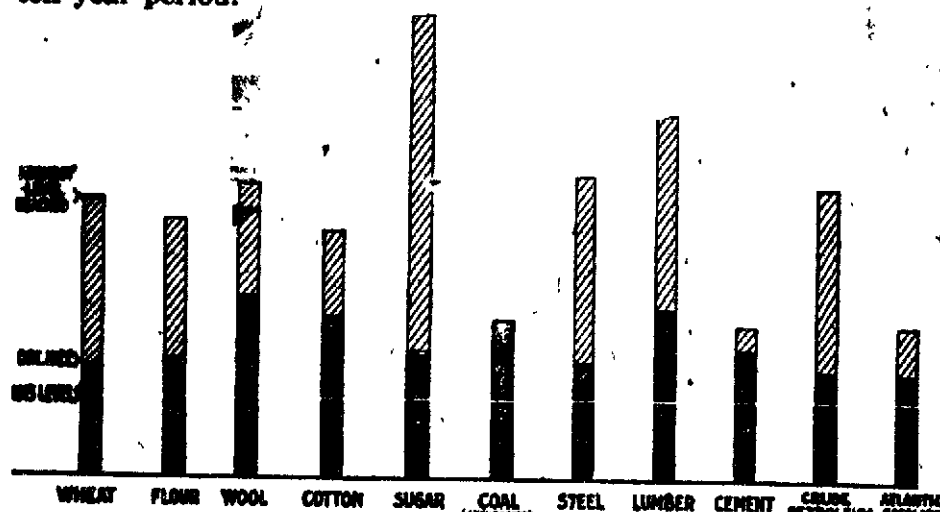

THINK of gasoline as stored-up power.

Your automobile weighs upward of a ton—perhaps two tons. Loaded with five people, it is propelled from ten to twenty miles or more by one gallon of gasoline.

The average usage of gasoline for 5,000 miles is around 300 gallons, costing, at prices for the last twelve months, about $75. Isn't that a small cost for power for an entire year's motoring? It is less than the expense for tires on some cars, less than many pay for storage or washing. Compare it with your annual expense for depreciation and it seems very small indeed.

Gasoline is cheap today compared with other commodities and with 1913 prices.

Look at the chart shown below. It pictures the present prices of a number of staple commodities compared to pre-war levels; also the maximum or "peak" price reached by each during this ten-year period.

The facts concerning Atlantic Gasoline are from the records of this Company; the others are from the Government's "Survey of Current Business" issued in February, 1923.

At no time during or after the war did the price of gasoline "skyrocket." When you were paying two and three times what you had been accustomed to pay for food, clothing, rent and building materials, gasoline for your motor cost little more than before the war. Even crude petroleum from which gasoline is made rose much higher than gasoline itself.

Have you ever considered why the price of gasoline has been held down? Here is the reason insofar as Atlantic Gasoline is concerned:

The Atlantic Refining Company has been carefully and efficiently managed, under private ownership, for fifty years. It is not hampered by expensive Government regulation but has been left free to serve the public with initiative, energy and economy.

Gasoline is cheap today. Governmental interference could result only in additional burdens on the industry and an increase in the cost of all petroleum products to you.

NUMBER 96

18 MILLION IS ADDITIONAL SUM NEEDED BY STATE

LEGISLATIVE MEMBERS AND PINCHOT
AGREED ON THIS POINT: TAX BILLS
WILL BE REPORTED OUT IMMEDIATELY

Gasoline and Motor License Fee Boost Will Probably Be the Method the Committee Will Recommend to the Assembled Legislators

THE BUDGET FIGURES STAND AS STATED

Harrisburg, Pa., April 11.—At the end of a long series of financial conferences between members of the Legislature and the Administration it was generally agreed today that the total additional revenue which must be found this session will amount to eighteen million dollars. It was further believed that it might not be necessary to enact new taxation to make up all this amount but that some of it might be found by merging and leveling of funds and other similar methods.

OVER PRODUCTION OF SOFT COAL IS CAUSING CONCERN

Washington, April 10.—In most of the larger bituminous producing districts in the eastern United States the demand for coal was dull on April 1, according to a national survey on the condition just completed by Fuel Distributor Danleigh, while in the western territory many mines were closed because of the lack of demand.

The investigation was undertaken to determine what has been the effect of the strikes of 1922 and the winter coal shortage that followed it.

Though still held back in some places by transportation disability, a shortage of railroad cars, particularly in West Virginia, the dull market was held to be nearly everywhere the chief factor now controlling the industry and little labor shortage or difficulty was indicated.

In the demand for coal was said to be abnormal; in Indiana the market was characterized as "glutted" while in Ohio came the report that market conditions were somewhat demoralized. Even though since were being furnished with a car supply ranging from only 22 to 40 per cent of their capacity. In the Pittsburgh district of Pennsylvania producers pointed out that they were experiencing the ordinary between seasons' lull in demand, and the same condition was indicated in central and northwestern districts in the same state.

In Kentucky the demand for coal was still found to be strong, with railroad supply so far below requirements as to occasion great congestion. The Kanawha, Logan and Pocahontas districts of West Virginia likewise found plenty of opportunity to sell coal if railroads could furnish equipment to make delivery.

Much of the demand in the West Virginia district was attributed to the export market which has been showing activity since the French occupation of the German coal fields began to exhibit its effect. In Northern West Virginia a few mines were said to be closing down because of inability to produce coal at a low enough price to meet the present market in the east.

New York, April 10.—Definite recommendations for the "four principal evils" of the coal industry prepared for recommendation to the United States Coal Commission, were outlined today.

London, April 11.—Six Irish insurgents were executed at Tipperary this morning, according to D. M. dispatches.

Ropes Her After 10,000-Mile Trip

Samuel Mirich, Colorado rancher, finally has thrown the matrimonial lariat around his sweetheart. He emigrated from Serbia to Colorado. He returned to Serbia for her. Eloped to Germany. Couldn't marry there because they hadn't lived there long enough. Sailed for the United States. She couldn't pass entrance tests. They returned to Germany and waited required time for license. Returned to U. S. Quota for Serbia filled. Mirich went to Washington to get permission for her entrance. He traveled 10,000 miles for her.

FOUR PRISONERS MAKE BOLD ESCAPE
CRIMINAL INSANE; ALL BAD ACTORS

Matteawan, N. Y., April 11.—Four persons escaped today from the state hospital for criminal insane in the spectacular manner in which Harry K. Thaw escaped from the same institution.

State police, hospital guards, local officials and immigration agents at the Canadian border are searching for the four men, who escaped in an automobile belonging to the institution.

Reprisals Follow The Ruhr Demonstrations
Staged Yesterday

Berlin, April 11.—The Ruhr today paid for its demonstration against the French on the occasion of the funeral of thirteen Krupp victims yesterday.

Evictions, fines, arrests, deportations, shooting and threats of court martial were reported from a dozen different places in the occupied areas.

Developments in today's dispatch include:

Walthrop.—A French soldier shot and killed a German girl in Buer.

Frankfort.—The French continued wholesale evictions. They occupied a second railroad colony at St. Paul, setting approximately one hundred German families into the street.

Duessburg.—The French fining the town 75,000,000 marks, ordered immediate payment in dollars, and arrested the mayor and others as hostages.

BALDRIGE ACTION DOES NOT CLOSE
THE SEARCH OF PERSON INCIDENT AT ALTOONA; ADAMS MAKES STATEMENT

Harrisburg, April 10.—The Pennsylvania state police in enforcing the new prohibition enforcement act do not intend to search trains any more indiscriminately than they do automobiles on the highways. Major Lynn G. Adams, superintendent of state police, in telling of his plans for the search and seizure of liquor in transport on the roads within the state, said there is always a reason behind each car stopped by his force.

"There is also always a reason when we search trains," he said, "and we only make arrests on passenger trains or search freight trains when we have evidence there is liquor there illegally."

"The state police have arrested but five persons on a train, and that was at Altoona recently. They were peddling liquor to passengers. We had received complaints that those men were traveling back and forth on the trains like gamblers on trans-Atlantic liners. In order to get them we rounded up fifteen men seen in a group where liquor was being used. We searched them and found liquor about it he will be bothered."

YELLOW DOGS WILL HOLD BONE KNOW
HERE TOMORROW EVENING; WATCH
YOUR STEP IN THE DARK ALLEYWAYS

Thursday evening this city will be visited by a large delegation of Yellow Dogs. Just where they are coming from and where they will meet is of course unannounced as not all of them are tagged and serious consequences may result.

Properly speaking these curs travel under the high sounding title of "Ancient, Honorable, Transcendental and Effervescent Order of Yellow Dogs." The organization is chartered by the Blair county court and already has over four thousand members in this state.

Tomorrow evening the curs will assemble to gnaw the bone, growl, bite and fight but not a hand shall be lifted against them. The mayor has issued a license giving them the keys to the alleys and byways of the city and the official dog catcher, anathema to all Yellow Dogs, had better keep out of the way.

The above is the subject matter of a communication received at The Progress office today so let our keepers of the peace not be led to do promiscuous shooting when they see a Yellow Dog running up an alley. Citizens witnessing this influx of fleas, bitten, mange-ridden mongrels need not worry but can go to bed and sleep soundly for the Yellow Dogs have a code of ethics which is at once philosophical, commonsensical and humanitarian, yet provides in case of ancient fraternity.

Squire Fleming Still In Hot Pursuit Of Goddess Of Justice

Squire Joe Fleming, of Grampian, was in Clearfield yesterday on business. The retund Squire is inclined to have a little hay on his horns this weather, growing out of what he contends was a miscarriage of justice when he was convicted recently of misappropriating $200 given to him for investment by a neighbor. Joe claimed at the trial that the money was turned over to E. J. Dyer & Co., the Philadelphia bucket shop proprietors, before the grand smash of that concern, and that he was guilty of no wrong in the transaction. The jury didn't believe Joe's story and convicted him. He was sentenced by Judge Whitehead to serve twenty days in jail after paying a fine of $300 and costs.

At the trial Joe contended the prosecutor not only knew the money had been invested with the Philadelphia concern, but that he had received a check for $75 from the bucket shop proprietors on account of same. This the prosecutor denied on the stand but since serving his sentence Joe claims to have secured the canceled check, bearing the endorsement of the prosecutor and has had information made against the man, charging him with perjury in his testimony at the trial of the case, and the affair will doubtless be given a second airing at May term of court.

Meanwhile Joe says he is also gunning for the newspaper which printed the story, the son of a gun who wrote it and the prosecuting attorney who furnished the information upon which the story of the trial was based.

Joe always did exude legal contention and scrappiness at every pore, but if his announced legal plans all work out along the lines he has mapped out, he's going to make some business for the lawyers and the courts the next few months.

HARVEY COMING AGAIN
London, April 11.—Ambassador George Harvey is going to the United States, probably at the end of April for a month's visit, the American Embassy announced today.

PENNA CRUDE REDUCED
Pittsburgh, Pa., April 11.—Pennsylvania crude oil was reduced 2 1/2 per barrel today, the new price being $3.75. Cabell, Somerset light and medium were reduced 3¢, and Corning 15¢. Ragland remained unchanged at $1.10.

ADVISORY BOARD OF
THE SALVATION ARMY
PLANNING CAMPAIGN

Reports Heard at the
First Meeting Cause of
Enthusiastic Work for a New Building.

BEGINS MAY FIRST

The April meeting of the Clearfield Salvation Army Advisory Board last evening heard that the Salvation Army Building Fund campaign is already under way. While no active work has been done, the board heard from Captain Watson that, already, three large gifts have been tendered to him. This, together with the favorable report that the board has heard concerning the announcement that a building fund would be raised this year, leads them to believe that Clearfield is not going to be remiss in discharging its obligation to the organization which always can be depended upon to do the work that it has cut out for itself to do.

The meeting of the Board was held last evening in the office of the Workman's Cash Grocery Company, Chairman George L. Thurston presiding. The meeting opened with a prayer by Captain Watson after which the roll call for 1923 was taken up. There was a good attendance and fine interest taken.

Much business in connection with the forthcoming building campaign was discussed. It will be recalled that the Army is asking the citizens of Clearfield to help it get its own headquarters here. An appeal will be made on May 1st to 10th. During this discussion Captain Watson related that he had already secured three large subscriptions and announced that Captain W. B. Fowler, of Pittsburgh, district superintendent would be present here for a few days to help get things in shape for a successful campaign.

The chairman for the various groups were elected as follows: S. L. Warner, Chairman Industrial Group; W. J. Usher, Assistant Chairman; Hon. W. L. Lett, Chairman County Group; Ralph Jordan, Chairman City Business Men's Group; House to House Appeal, Horace Flagell, Publicity, G. A. Stewart, Tag Day and Public and Parochial Schools E. W. Hearn.

The members of the board assembled last evening were enthusiastically of the opinion that this appeal will go over the top and that the Salvation Army's friends and supporters throughout the county will co-operate to this end.

The appeal headquarters are in the Lattman Building and advance subscriptions marked Salvation Army Building Appeal may be sent direct to the Treasurer, R. L. Fulton of the County National Bank or to Capt. and Mrs. L. E. Watson, Box 404, Clearfield, Pa.

PECULIAR TERMS IN WILL MADE BY WELL
TO DO PITTSBURGHER

Pittsburgh, Pa., April 11.—Beaumont Dromestaun of No. 7 Rue Raymond, Paris, France, faithful companion for more than fifty years, was left three tenths of the income of the estate left by Norman Stang, son of a Pittsburgh wealthy family, according to the terms of the will filed for probate today.

No estimate of the estate left has been made. The estate is to be placed in trust for his wife and daughter, both of whom live in Canada, and the income of the estate, the remaining one-tenth goes to Alfred Lloyd, a friend.

Although born in Pittsburgh, Stang spent most of his life in Paris, dying at the home of Miss Dromestaun. Before he died he directed that his body be sent to Pittsburgh and buried there.

Lansing-Ishii Pact Is Ratified By Japanese;
U. S. Will Follow Soon

Tokio, April 11.—The Japanese privy council today ratified the proposed abrogation of the Lansing-Ishii agreement with the United States. This action, when followed by formal abrogation by the United States will complete the work of throwing into political discard the agreement made five years ago by which the United States agreed to recognize "special interests" of Japan in China.

Good Red Blood and Health Will Follow If You Take This Advice

Johnstown, Pa.—"I can not say enough in praise of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery for the help it has given me. I take it as a blood purifier and as a tonic to build me up when run-down, also for sluggish and inactive liver and it always gives quick relief." Golden Medical Discovery builds up the entire system and is one of the best medicines I have ever found for a bad cold or deep-seated cough. The "Discovery" is an excellent family remedy and I am never without it in the home for use when needed."

COMB SAGE TEA INTO GRAY HAIR

Darkens Beautifully and Restores Its Natural Color and Lustre At Once

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea, with sulphur and alcohol added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use preparation improved by the addition of other ingredients in a large bottle, at little cost, at drug stores, known as "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," thus avoiding a lot of fuss.

While gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared. After an hour application or two your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant and you appear years younger.

COMMUNITY SERVICE ACTIVITIES

As many as possible of the men interested in horseshoe pitching are asked to be present at the meeting at the High School Thursday night at 8 o'clock so that all the necessary business can be dispatched in that one session. It will be remembered that this sport has been followed seriously for only one season and considering the fine progress made last summer, a systematic organization this year should put out some really expert players. In fact there is some rumor of possible competing outside of the state. Officers and a few working committees are necessary to carry on the business and one brief but well attended meeting should take care of that.

The Mother's committee of East End Community Service join with the teachers in that ward in repeating the invitation to the tea party at the School House Thursday afternoon at 2:30. There will be a little program by the school, Mr. A. D. Bigler will be there to discuss some matters of interest to East End people and there will be, of course, tea served by the committee. All are asked to make an effort to find time to come for these little affairs have proved most delightful and worth while.

DR. HARRY GESSLER TAKEN TO WARREN STATE ASYLUM

Punkatowney, April 10.—Dr. Harry Gessler, known to countless friends throughout this section as "Heavy," is suffering from a mental affliction and is now in the Warren hospital for the insane. "Heavy," who climbed high on the baseball ladder of fame as a member of the Washington American Club and other big league aggregations, got his baseball start in Punkatowney. His many friends here fervently hope that his affliction will be short lived and that he will soon be able to resume his practice of medicine.

James O. Booth and Miss Fria S. Williams were quietly married at the Lutheran parsonage by the pastor, Rev. E. Roy Hauser on March 28th. The bridegroom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Booth of near Curwensville and is a veteran of the World War, having served with the 80th Division overseas. He was wounded in action and was decorated with D. S. C. and the Croix de Guerre. The bride is the daughter of Mr. Samuel Williams of Curwensville. They will reside in Curwensville.

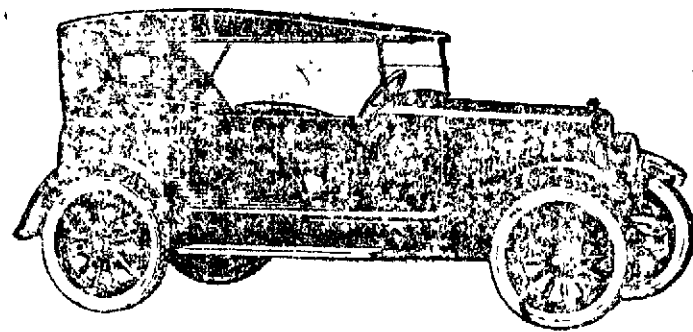

James H. Johnston and Miss Fria S. Johnston were united in marriage this (Wednesday) morning at the Lutheran parsonage by the pastor Rev. E. Roy Hauser. The beautiful ring ceremony was used. The bridegroom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. S. M. Johnston of Glen Hope and is employed with the U. S. Refractory Co. of Barrett. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Fister, of Clearfield and has been employed with the Clearfield Textile Co. They were attended by a brother of the bridegroom and sister of the bride.

Vendetta begins between MICHAEL SAYERS, noted criminal, and SIR NORMAN GREYES, once of Scotland Yard, when Sayers' beautiful housemaid, JANET, saves him from Sir Norman by shooting dead an officer sent to arrest him. Greys falls in love with Janet and proposes marriage. Michael disguises himself and attends the wedding reception. Having stolen a pearl necklace, the gift of Sir Norman to his bride, Sayers returns them indirectly to Janet.

Michael buys from the divorced wife of a politician a bundle of manuscript, evidence against the lady's former husband and his confederate, the well-known Lord Kindersley. Sayers refuses ten thousand pounds from the newspapers for the evidence for publication because he is in love with Beatrice Kindersley.

"I was toward the close of a dinner party at Kindersley Court, in Devonshire, where Janet and I were spending a fortnight, that our host suddenly directed the conversation to me.

"One has heard a great deal of your successes, Greys, especially during your last few years at Scotland Yard. What do you count your greatest failure?"

"My inability to bring to justice the greatest criminal in Europe," I replied after a moment's hesitation. "I had him on my book for three years, but when I retired, he was still very much at large."

"What is his name?" Lord Kindersley asked with some interest.

"I smiled.

"A name, with him, I suspect, is an affair of the moment. I have known him under a dozen different pseudonyms; but his real name is, I believe, Michael. He did me the honor to attend my wedding reception at Colonel Baccumb's."

I happened to meet the glance of Beatrice Kindersley as I looked across the table.

"But tell us about this man, Michael," Lord Kindersley intervened. "I remember, seven or eight years ago, hearing something about the duel between you fellows at Scotland Yard and a wonderfully big criminal gang. Where is the fellow now?"

I shook my head.

"I shouldn't have the faintest idea where to look for him. If he comes into the sunlight again, my friend Rimmington at Scotland Yard will certainly send for me."

"And you would join in the hunt?" our host persisted.

"You would do nothing of the sort," Janet intervened looking across at me. "That is a promise."

I smiled back at her reassuringly. Prosperity and peace of mind had agreed with Janet. The dignity of widowhood sat well upon her. Her complexion seemed to have grown more creamy, her beautiful eyes softer, her carriage, always graceful, more assured. There was no woman in the county more admired than she—certainly no one less spoiled.

"Sometimes I think that if she had had her way, she would never have wandered at all outside our little domain."

"There is just the one possibility," I remarked. "I might not be able to evade the challenge. If I do not go after Michael, he may come after me."

It was precisely at this moment that the affixing event happened. We were a party of twelve at dinner seated at a round table in the center of the large banquet hall of Kindersley Court. The room was rapidly dimly lighted, except for the heavily shaded table lamps. The two footmen had left the room, presumably to fetch the coffee, and the butler standing behind Lord Kindersley's chair was the only servant in attendance. Suddenly every light in the place went out, and we were plunged into the most complete darkness.

"Never knew such a thing happen before," our host declared in an annoyed tone. "Somebody must have been tinkering with the power-house. Fetch some candles here."

The butler turned to go; his way toward the door, but he was not allowed to reach it. From various parts of the shadowy room a fire blazed out and steadily approached, without sound or movement. One of them came to a stand still immediately behind Lord Kindersley's chair. Winked by some unseen hand, the gleaming brilliancy of a half-dozen electric torches was flashed round upon twelve amazed faces. Then a strong voice broke the spellbound silence, a voice still and cold and perfectly modulated.

"Ladies and gentlemen," the intruder said, "there is no need for any particular alarm. This is, to use a slang phrase, a 'hoax.' We have automatic torches, and I trust that you will realize the absurdity of resistance."

"God bless my soul!" Lord Kindersley exclaimed. "Where are all my servants? How the devil did you get in?"

"It is scarcely policy to let you into the secret of our methods," the same cold voice continued; "but I have no objection to telling you that we came in through the front door, that your servants are locked up and guarded in the servants' hall very much as you are, that your telephone wires are cut, your electric light supply is in our hands, and the lodge-gates guarded. You ladies will kindly place all the jewelry you are wearing, upon the table in front of you. There must be no delay, please, or any attempt at conversation."

"What shall I do?" the woman next to me whispered hoarsely. "I am wearing my emeralds—Jack informed me not to—they are worth 20,000 pounds."

"You will have to do as the others are doing," I told her. The first act of this little drama must be played out according to orders."

She unclipped the necklace with trembling fingers, and the unseen

"Will it be Sir Norman Greys who stands across the stage in the second act?" he asked maliciously.

"I know who was there, and I remembered that without telling me you told my husband that he was the only man who could save me, but somehow the idea of conversation never had any chance for me."

"I may occupy the stage for a little time," I answered, looking at my wrist through the darkness. "After all, it will be the third act of the comedy. What can you do, Sir Norman? Michael only says that he is a member of the House of Commons, but he is not."

"This, of course, was sheer nonsense. A touch of skepticism of which I opened as soon as I had returned to it. I heard the click of a chair and in the dim light of the torches I saw that I was alone with the intruder. He based on a door that I had not seen. There was a clatter of feet and a man came running through the room."

"A familiar voice, I thought, I checked and called out to the intruder.

"You do well to recognize my lady. Some day or other, I think that your husband will tell me of him, but unless he tells me with a piece of parchment, it will be when we are both named and the odds are even."

"May I speak, please?" Beatrice Kindersley asked.

"I have put my ring and bracelet upon the table. I am wearing around my neck a necklace and two bracelets. It is jewelry very valuable, but it was left me by a relative. May I keep it?"

The light flashed for a moment upon the pendant which she carried to her throat, but she refused to hold it forward for examination. "Rushed on the little heap of her jewelry upon the table."

"Pray keep your valuables," the voice continued. "Do not forget your honor, if you will, of respect to the jewelry upon your fingers and wrists. We are not here to rob children of their treasures."

BEATRICE'S laugh was a small, amusing thing. It was partly by nature and part of conscious enjoyment.

"I don't like the reflection upon my jewelry," she complained. "However, since you are so generous, I will accept your offer."

"Look here," Lord Kindersley broke out, finding a certain change from his own complete constipation. "Is this a wedding ring?"

"You will observe if it is a genuine joke or not, if you object to leave your seat?" was the instant reply.

"These fellows can't think they're going to get away with a thing like this," muttered Lord Kindersley, the hard heartiness of the county, from the other end of the table.

"Your Lordship is mistaken," said the confident reply from the man whose figure was directing the proceedings. "I will let you see to one in hundreds that we do the present to be made through the personal columns of the Times in thirty days' time."

"God, he's a cool hand!" shouted another. The master of the house, who was seated next to me, said: "I wish I could see him then for a moment."

"It would be your last if you did," he was promptly told.

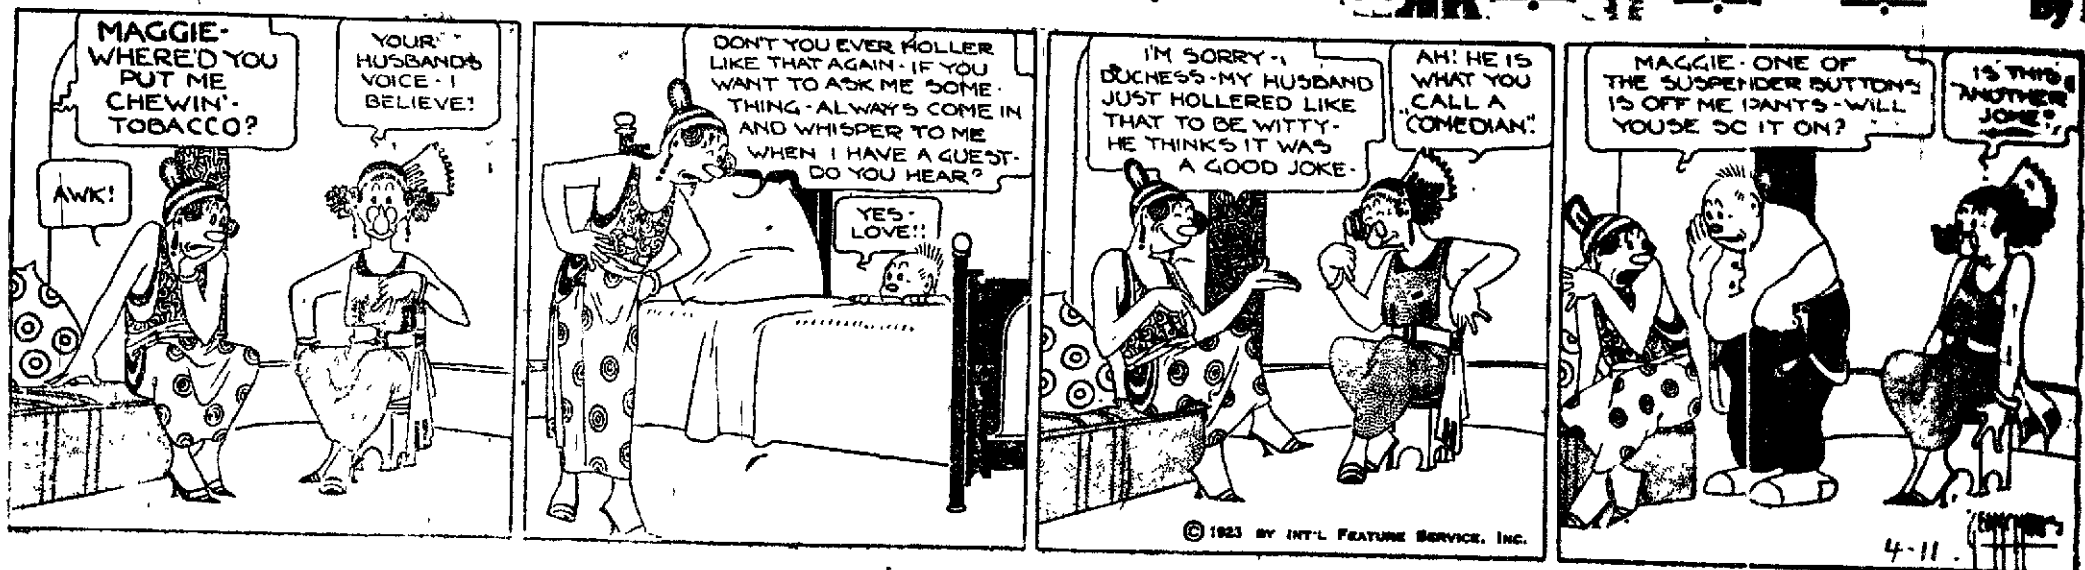

"What a strike a model!" a young man who was seated next to Kindersley inquired.

"I should put it out with my hat, let and you with the next," he answered grimly. "Now, ladies and gentlemen," he went on, in a brief pause, "our business comes to order. Anyone who loves his own life, or the life of his family, will not shoot at us. As soon as we get there, we shall lock you in, and then you can amuse yourselves with the fun as soon as you like."

No one attempted a single word of reply. The little points of fire were kept turned upon us while our visitors slowly retreated. We heard the door open and heard it slam shut. The door opened and the light came on. Our consciousness was all started to our feet.

ODD'S AND ENDS AND THINGS

By J. D. C.

There are no games like this, old games, hence the revival of interest in horse shoe pitching, marble shooting, etc. Clearfield is about to put on an old-fashioned marble shooting tournament to which all the kids will be eligible, therefore the following on the subject should prove of interest:

The marble shooting contest scheduled for some time in June at Atlantic City will be attended by 41 crick shots from as many different cities. At first it seemed too much like some childish boyhood to put this matter and well loved game on a championship footing. But so far neighbors of marble shooting hasn't been hostile, and incidentally interest in marble is being revived.

A Kansas City librarian, Purd B. Wright, writes the public that in the days of which Mark Twain wrote in "Tom Sawyer" and "Huckleberry Finn" grown men were as keen about marbles as the boys. With city, country and national contests now gaining favor, we may find dignified further all over the country setting aside their golf sticks for an hour or two and, tackling down once more to shoot marbles with the gang. They mightn't make too good a showing at first, but a old skill would probably come back with persistent practice. Further on marbles contests ought to prove a great aid to the present day movement for a better understanding between the two generations.

A pamphlet summarizing the facts learned through the "careful crossing campaign" last summer, as to causes and means of preventing grade crossing accidents, has just been issued by the Pennsylvania department of the Pennsylvania railroad.

Probably the most important conclusion was that nearly all accidents at grade crossings, which involve motor vehicles, are directly due to gross carelessness on the part of a very small proportion, not over three per cent, of the total number of drivers. Observations were made while 100,000 automobiles were actually crossing the tracks. It was found that the drivers of ninety-seven per cent of the automobiles were reasonably careful but that the remainder displayed reckless and in many cases actually criminal negligence.

Elimination of the reckless drivers, who make up a very small percentage of the total, and who are responsible for nearly all the accidents, is the remedy suggested for this condition. Use is urged of all reasonable means within the legal powers of town, city, county and state authorities to bring about this result.

A driver can figure out how reckless he is by a glance at the following schedule prepared after careful investigation and research by police and automobile authorities and which is regarded as standard on the subject. It shows the distance a car will run before it can be stopped at various rates of speed, as follows:—
At 10 miles per hour, 9.2 feet.
At 15 miles per hour, 20.8 feet.
At 20 miles per hour, 37 feet.
At 25 miles per hour, 58 feet.
At 30 miles per hour, 83.3 feet.
At 35 miles per hour, 113 feet.
At 40 miles per hour, 148 feet.
At 50 miles per hour, 231 feet.
These figures should serve to inform the motorless automobile driver of the distance he is taking when he travels through any built up section at even 20 miles per hour.

We never give enough attention to the danger of fast driving until an accident occurs. The unfortunate driver in the fatal accident of Saturday last was driving no faster than hundreds of other drivers seen daily on the streets of Clearfield. Many

Clearfield Citizens Testify for the Public Benefit.

A truthful statement of a Clearfield citizen, given in his own words, should convince the most skeptical about the merits of Doan's Kidney Pills. If you suffer from backache, nervousness, sleeplessness, urinary disorders or any form of kidney ills, use a tested kidney medicine.

A Clearfield citizen tells of Doan's Kidney Pills.

Could you demand more convincing proof of merit? Ask your neighbor!

Lewis E. Wise, miner, 404 River St., Clearfield, says: "While working in the mines I was caught with a pain in my back. I couldn't do any lifting or anything that caused me to bend over. I had no appetite and the pains in my limbs were severe. Doan's Kidney Pills being highly recommended to me I began their use and I noticed a change in my condition before taking half a box. On finishing two boxes of Doan's the pains in my back and lameness were all gone." 50c. at all dealers. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.

Your State Commissions Regulate Public Utilities

YOUR State Commission knows all about the affairs of your Electric Light and Power Company. This Commission sees to it that your rates are as low as possible but also that earnings are sufficient always to pay dividends regularly to the investors in the Company's securities. Why let the earnings of the Company go to investors who live in other cities and other states? Why not keep these dividends at home?

Bargains

Oh, the joy of purchases that satisfy! It's not nearly so much what you pay as what you receive for what you pay that counts. We want you to feel that our reputation is back of every purchase. With us a sale is not completed until you have used the merchandise to your satisfaction. Bargains are often boomerangs. Quality determines our price. We aim to give 100 per cent value for every dollar spent in our store.

It is commonly recognized that doctors and lawyers, upon entering their professions, are in duty bound to conform to an accepted code of ethics in the carrying on of their work. It is a new departure, however, for a group of newspaper men to formulate a code which makes it unethical for their papers to print matter deemed objectionable by leaders in their profession.

The pioneers to take such an action are the members of the State Editorial Association of Oregon. The editor of a leading periodical in the East, in commenting on the matter of the opinion that the code adopted by the Oregon newspaper men is a higher standard than the average practice of the business, although not higher than that maintained by some newspapers in most cities.

The Oregon code is a big step forward in the annals of newspaper progress. It is an open recognition of the responsibility which the press carries toward the people to whom it supplies reading matter, the responsibility of giving them the truth at all times, at the same moment bearing the best interests of a man in mind. By adopting such a code, the Oregon association should raise the standard of journalism not only in its own state, but should raise it in other states by leading them to adopt similar codes.

The recent tragic death of little Tony Luffetti beneath the wheels of an automobile on Daisy Street last Saturday afternoon should serve as the warning which will waken Clearfield through authorities and automobile drivers generally to a sense of their responsibilities the coming season.

We believe our readers will unanimously agree with us in the statement that both the state automobile laws and the thorough traffic ordinance are practically entirely ignored and that one automobile driver in ten appears to know or pays attention to either while driving Clearfield's streets and the only wonder, to one familiar with conditions, is that there has not been more accidents. That there has not been many here is purely the result of extra good luck rather than good management and some effort should be made to improve traffic conditions before other lives are snuffed out in the twinkling of an eye.

The law provides, and no man should be allowed to violate that provision, that every automobile driven through a congested or populous section, such as every street in Clearfield is considered by the law, at such a rate of speed that it is under the absolute control of its driver and could be stopped almost instantly at will. No car traveling twenty-five miles per hour or even twenty miles, can be so regarded.

The traffic ordinance also provides that automobiles may be parked on but the west side of all streets running north and south, and on the south side of all streets running east and west. How often and how generally is this provision disregarded? Don't ask yourself, look at your street right now and count the flagrant violations.

We have no criticism for the borough authorities for their laxity except to say that they have been entirely too lenient and are the victims of that system which aims to get along with the least possible contention or friction, and in doing so took the most for granted by giving the automobile drivers an inch of privilege and almost each and every one so privileged took the proverbial yard and then some.

Mayor Kittelberger and Council owe it to themselves and to the people of Clearfield to get together, and at once, and make decision as to the strict enforcement of the traffic laws in Clearfield. A stitch in time may save nine lives. Now is the time.

SHOE STYLE AND SHOE VALUE
THAT REMAIN SUPREME ALWAYS

Seven Points of Supremacy

1. The sole leather used in "FOOT-FITTERS" is of the best quality obtainable. From the 11 sizes and up from standard outside leather.
2. "FOOT-FITTERS" are the only shoes in the world having full length range and sole in other last sizes. This feature prevents ripping at the tip and makes smooth outer and inner surfaces.
3. The uppers are channelled so that they fit tightly against the foot. There is no need or room for a sock liner. A small piece of duck is used to prevent chafing.
4. The "FOOT-FITTER" inside comfort pocket is of great value, for it saves the wear on the foot. There is no rough surface to rub against.
5. "FOOT-FITTER" heels are 1/4-inch longer than generally used. They give additional support to the arch and increase the comfort and wear of the shoe.
6. The shoe is reinforced with 8-oz. duck. This absorbs the moisture from the foot and keeps the shoe from cracking and holds the shoe in shape.
7. "FOOT-FITTER" shoes are called "FOOT-FITTER" because they do not crack! Built on combination lasts they support the foot like a doctor's hand. "FOOT-FITTER" gives you service and appearance.

Appliances

PENN PUBLIC SERVICE CORPORATION announces the publication on February 23, 1923, of a new "F" rate for electric range and heating appliance service in order to provide the customer who desires to install such appliances with a lower rate for such service.

THE NEW "F" RATE is applicable to service for electric ranges and heating appliances which include such appliances as coffee percolators, toasters, griddles, etc.

The regular residence service will continue to be measured through the customary light meter, another meter and service being installed to take care of the electric range and heating demand.

ELECTRIC RANGE SCHEDULE "F"

For the first 30 kilowatt hours of monthly consumption 10c per K. W. H.
For all in excess of 30 kilowatt hours used each month 3c per K. W. H.
A minimum charge of $3.00 per month will be made. All bills will be subject to a discount of 5% if paid on or before the 15th of the month following that for which bill is rendered.

Schedule will apply to service supplied through one meter, to one customer, at one residence, with an installed electric range or heating appliance capacity of not less than 3 K. W.

Our New Business Department at Clearfield will furnish full information upon request.

Population Of The Nation Increases Over Million In Year

Washington, April 11.—The population of the United States will be 110,663,502 on July 1st, 1923, according to estimates today by Census Bureau Statisticians.

The country's population is increasing at the rate of 1,415,109 annually. This would give a total of 119,861,710 by the time the next annual census is taken in 1930. The 1920 census showed a population of 105,710,820.

The estimated population of Pennsylvania is January 1, 1920, 8,720,017—January 1, 1923, 9,100,326.

APRIL 11TH TO 18TH

During the early part of this season we have traded in a large number of very good used cars. We also have a number of private cars that have been left in our hands to dispose of. Every thing we have on the floor will be offered at this sale.

This is a rare chance to get an automobile at a low price. Bring your friends and attend this sale. Prices $50, $75, $100 up to $800. Don't forget the dates, April 11th to 18th.

BASEBALL SEASON IS ABOUT HERE

And how can you play your game if you haven't the proper tools? We feature the famous D. & M. line of baseball material and you'll find the big fellows using it and saying that it is the best ever.

We have everything you'll need from balls to uniforms and you will find that they are the sort that will stand the wear of hard playing.

If your team is going to have new uniforms, we would like to have the pleasure of figuring with you on it.

Try Colorite On Old Straw Hats

If you have your last season's straw hat and wish to come out in some of the more daring colors that are in vogue this spring, a bottle of COLORITE and a few minutes of time will give you the new hat.

Coupon Day Continues Tomorrow
